

Patent Infringement In Australia: Results From A Survey

IPRIA SEMINARS

Date: Wednesday 10 June 2009

Time: 5.30pm - 6.00pm

Venue: Blake Dawson

The Intellectual Property Research Institute of Australia is running a half-day course on Wednesday 3 June from 9.00am –1.00pm.

The course on 'IP in the Real World' considers two IP management case studies of real events to provide participants with a practical introduction to the patent and trade marks systems. Both case studies feature well-known, international companies and offer valuable lessons on how best to manage intellectual property in difficult business environments.

The BlackBerry case concerns a dispute between a US inventor and a Canadian technology company over patent infringement.

The Sidamo case concerns a challenge by Starbucks to the Ethiopian Government's application for a US trade mark in relation to coffee.
